Many people view investing as a form of income, and some are quite successful at making a living by trading stocks. This is the most glamorized form of investing, however, it isn't the type of investing that most people benefit from. Phil is a hedge fund manager and author of 3 New York Times best-selling investment books, Invested, Rule #1, and Payback Time. He was taught how to invest using Rule #1 strategy when he was a Grand Canyon river guide in the 80's, after a tour group member shared his formula for successful investing. Phil has a passion educating others, and has given thousands of people the confidence to start investing and retire comfortably. Investing in mutual funds allows you to gain instant diversification by letting you hold many stocks, bonds, or other investments with a single purchase. They do, however, typically come with initial fees. These fees are usually 1% of your portfolio, regardless of gains and losses. Fees may increase if you are working with an external firm to manage your portfolio. Investing in whatever form is always a smart idea. While there's no correct way to start investing, you could begin by putting money aside in an IRA or 401(k) account. This is an easy way to invest with great tax incentives, and is geared entirely towards saving for retirement. You should also use an investment calculator to figure out your budget and goals based on your debt, your income, and other financial factors.
