"Light from Heaven", is supposedly the final book in the Mitford series by Jan Karon. Fortunately, the ending leaves room for another, as fans of Mitford, like myself, would love to see. Father Tim Kavanaugh and his wife Cynthia, their family, friends, pets and all, give one a delicious sense of small town closeness. Light from Heaven. I bought the first book at a store that had used books included in their things for sale. While reading the book I was hooked and looking at the first pages, realized they were a series. I went to a used book store and accidentally but happily found only two of Jan Karon's books, one was the one that I was reading at the time and the other happened to be book two which I purchased very quickly. Ninth book in the Father Tim Kavanaugh of Mitford, NC series. Karon wraps it all up in this last book in the Mitford series. Father Tim and Cynthia finalize their plans for retirement, the multiple ongoing story threads are resolved, Dooley and Lace mature, mysteries are brought to light, Father Tim's old nemesis reappears in a surprising way, and the book ends in an satisfying if improbable way. Life moves on. What I find remarkable about this series is what appears to be Karon's attitude toward Mitford and its people. Light From Heaven. Jan Karon *. Chapter ONE. Learning from a book is not the way to do it. I've decided to let Olivia tutor me, if she has a free day now and then. Besides, having lunch with someone who also wears eye shadow might be fun."
