Welcome to issue 31 of Research Notes, our quarterly publication reporting on matters relating to research, test development and validation within Cambridge ESOL. In this issue we focus on the skill of reading, a component in all of our language assessments and teaching awards. We approach reading in a number of ways: from the general to the specic: from the theoretical (dening the construct); through the practical (operationalising the construct) to corpus-informed studies of reading vocabulary across the prociency continuum and nally to the thematic organisation of reading passages.
