Many people feel that by the age of 50, they have done everything they should in life. But, in reality, being "over the hill" is only a state of mind. List Rules

Vote for the most incredible accomplishments of people after they turned 50. Many people feel that by the age of 50, they have done everything they should in life. But, in reality, being "over the hill" is only a state of mind. What have people accomplished after turning 50? What kinds of great accomplishments, inventions, and notable feats have older people done? Whether it's brought about by a mid-life crisis or circumstances that had prevented them from going after their dreams before, these people did not let the failing of the body or the troubles of aging stop them from accomplishing great feats. Many predictions are comically off-base: The New York TimesTM proclaimed in 1920 that "a rocket will never be able to leave the Earth's atmosphere," while Variety insisted in 1955 that rock and roll was merely a fad, and would "be gone by June." But sometimes, futurists are on-point: Roger Ebert basically foresaw Netflix in 1987, while Google engineering director Ray Kurzweil has correctly predicted enough technological developments to fill a book. Keeping the varying accuracy of predictions in mind, we wondered what today's futurists had to say. What might the world look like in 50 years? Here...

5. The majority of people will live in cities, which will be increasingly more integrated with nature and plants. "Made in America" means higher costs because U.S. workers get paid more for their work than those in China. The Dollar Will Remain Solid. The U.S. dollar value hit a high of 126.5 on March 23, 2020, as the pandemic sent investors scurrying to the dollar's safety. Money spent on defense increases America's debt. It also takes away from such key areas as health care and education. Defense spending is not the best job creator. What's next for Jane? After being imprisoned for paying $50,000 to a 'test expert' to take the ACT for her son, and submitting samples of his handwriting so he could forge her son's signature, she was granted 3 weeks in a Federal Penitentiary. Who needs advice from someone who lies, cheats and steals to push her kid ahead of others (who are navigating the system legally)? Read more. Helpful. Comment Report abuse

"Predictions" from fifty people on a variety of subjects, in a book of 280 pages - which averages to what? About 5 1/2 pages per prediction and you can subtract the 1/2 page because there is a paragraph before each essay explaining who each of the experts are. So if you're interested about the future of Video Games, Seamus Blackley wrote 2 1/2 pages on that.

What will we eat? How will our economy and global workforce shift? If you've ever wondered about these questions, you'll find the predictions below from over a dozen thought leaders thought-provoking and entertaining. Read on for insights about the future of VR, robotics, self-driving cars, and much more. How Will The World Change In The Next 5-10 Years? Peter Shankman, Founder of HARO & best-selling author: The customer economy [will change] everything from the Internet of Things to Uber, from automation to lack of actually owning. Where we are now will seem like ancient history in fi what their predictions are for the future of their industry or area of interest. Examples include: SpaceX founder Elon Musk on how the future of space travel is in privatization and NASA is dead; Author Reza Aslan on how American Islam may become a model for the world; and, MIT professor Steve Ward on how 'computers are no damned good' and how this will change. She is a contributing editor to Cosmopolitan, a regular guest on Good Morning America and The View, and was recently named by Elle as one of the 25 Most Powerful Women in Hollywood. Every legitimate ballot across America was watermarked with QFS blockchain encryption codes. Trump was fully aware of the sting operation and is still allowing the Dems to dig themselves deeper into their election fraud. The sophisticated sting operation was intended to catch and expose the massive vote fraud of the Democrats. Everything you're seeing right now with the ballot fraud was completely expected by Trump's people. Thousands and thousands of National Guard [troops] have been sent to 12 states right now, to assist in securing the legitimate ballots and throwing out the fake ballots

The book also shows how these leaders work, what they believe will be important, and what they think is not worth our time. In a world that seems to be changing faster than ever, it offers insights into how we can keep up--and stay ahead.--From publisher description. It may even transform what it means to be human. But in the short term "the next 20 years" the world will still be dominated by the doings of nation-states and the central issue will be the rise of the east. By 2030, the world will be more complicated, divided between a broad American sphere of influence in Europe, the Middle East and south Asia, and a Chinese sphere in east Asia and Africa. America's financial problems will surely deepen through the 2010s, but the 2020s could bring another Roosevelt or Reagan. Most of the world's poorest people live here; climate change is wreaking its worst damage here; nuclear weapons are proliferating fastest here; and even in 2030, the great powers will still seek much of their energy here. The next 50 years of human spaceflight should bring a sea change, with commercial spaceflight companies taking over near-Earth operations, freeing NASA and other space agencies to send astronauts to asteroids and Mars. More than 400 people have already bought down payments for such a trip, according to company officials. Other firms are jockeying for position in the suborbital-tourism race, including Blue Origins, Masten Space Systems, XCOR Aerospace and Armadillo Aerospace. Orbital tourist trips might not be far behind suborbital jaunts. "Fifty years in the future, I would hope that millions of people have had the opportunity to travel to space, and that thousands of people live there," Whitesides told SPACE.com.

Through the holiday season and most of January, most of the state remained under lockdown, until Mr. Newsom lifted the order on Jan. 25. The state then returned to its previous county-based system " which, as of Jan. 19, had nearly 100 percent of the state's population in the highest-risk tier." Tate Reeves, a Republican, announced new restrictions in December, capping social gatherings at 10 people indoors and 50 outdoors. Mr. Reeves has resisted calls to reinstate a broader, statewide mask mandate he let expire in September, but has instead ordered their use on a county-by-county basis. As of January, masks were required in all but a few counties. "Many people wonder later what else they might have learned from their parents," says Robyn. 13. Trying to live up to your parents' expectations. Shutterstock. Having a good relationship with your parents can be a wonderful thing. However, trying to live up to their expectations, no matter the personal cost, is a major source of regret in many people's lives." As we age, many people also feel disappointed about not taking better care of themselves, particularly in terms of their food choices. Considering that diet is directly responsible for approximately 678,000 deaths in the United States alone each year, it's safe to assume that many would opt for salads over cheeseburgers if they could do things over.
